

KRISTIN CRANE

From her Providence loom, Kristin Crane explores techniques such as indigo and shibori dyeing and Ikat weaving. She produces such textiles as table runners and napkins that are anything but run-of-the-mill. KristinCrane.com

MICHELLE PHANEUF CERAMICS

Clean-edged serveware featuring iconic Rhode Island landmarks, sea creatures, flourishes and dots are among the motifs spotted on the white bisque work of this Barrington potter. Michelle Phaneuf Ceramics on Facebook and Instagram

RISING SUN EARTHWORKS

Rhode Island's rocky coastline informs the earthenware pieces of June Gonzalez, whose textured pieces range from pie plates and mugs to tiny bowls. RisingSunEarthworks.com

THE LITTLE CLAY STUDIO

In addition to supplying richly glazed tableware to restaurants like Gracie's, Metacom Kitchen, and Waterman Grille, The Little Clay Studio in Providence provides a hands-on ceramics education and livelihood for adults with disabilities. TheLittleClayStudio.org

THREE WHEEL STUDIO

Mugs with blue insides and exteriors reminiscent of sea urchins hail from this studio and gallery on Providence's Wickenden Street. The space also features pieces by proprietor Dwo Wen Chen, known for his series of imprinted botanicals, sold by national retailer Terrain. ThreeWheelStudio.com
